Fatal Crossing Crash

Boy Dead; Mother Critically Hurt

Tragedy struck the Hart family of Lincolnwood, near New Lenox last weekend with double impact. A son, William, 17, was killed and the mother, Ida Ione, 47, is in critical condition in Silver Cross hospital at Joliet, as a result of an auto-train collision southeast of Joliet, at 1:05 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Hart is suffering from compound fractures of the arms and legs, and also internal injuries. At the hospital yesterday it was reported that she appeared to be responding to treatment but her condition is quite serious.

Last rites for William were held yesterday. The body was taken from the Baskerville chapel to the Frankfort Methodist church at noon to lie in state until 2 o'clock when funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Ben Day. Burial was in Skyline

Memorial cemetery near Chicago Heights.

William was driving at the time of the accident. He and his mother were enroute to visit his brother Charles, 27, and were within 50 feet of his home when the fatality occurred. Charles heard the crash and when he came out to investigate found that members of the family were the victims.

The accident occurred on what is known as the "old Briggs street crossing" of the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad. The crossing has no gates but is said to be open.

Jack Baylor, of Gary, engineer of the train, a westbound freight, told Coroner Willard G. Blood of Will County that apparently William who was traveling south, did not notice the train until the car was about 20 feet from the crossing.

The youth then apparently applied the brakes, the engine was quoted as saying, and skidded onto the tracks just at the time the locomotive reached the crossing.

The engine struck the car and spun it, according to sheriff's deputies who investigated the case; the motor of the car was hurled for more than 50 feet, and William was thrown out of the auto and under one of the freight cars. His body was carried along for more than 500 feet, and was badly mangled.

Mrs. Hart was so badly injured that she had to be wrapped in a sheet before she could be transported to the hospital and upon arrival was taken immediately to an operating room where surgeons worked for hours endeavoring to repair the damage.

County Towns Open Chest Drive

The 23rd annual Joliet-Will County Community Chest campaign was launched in the county towns division this week. Because of the wide area to be covered, the county-towns phase of the campaign is begun earlier than the drive proper.

The Chest campaign dates this year are listed officially as Oct. 9-20. In that period workers hope to raise a total of $283,600, an increase of $14,605 above the 1957-58 quota.

Those in charge say the increase is necessary because more service are needed and a new agency, Family Service, has been added to the list of those receiving financial assistance from the Chest. It offers counseling service to persons with emotional problems and was established upon the recommendation of the Council of Social Agencies after a two-year study.

The Chest goal is established by a budget committee which studies receipts and expenses, as well as services, of each agency for the year and their estimate of expenditures for the 12 months to come.

There are 18 of these agencies: Boy Scouts, Catholic Charity and Home Bureau, Catholic Youth Organization, Community Branch YMCA, Community Safety Council, Family Service Agency, Girl Scouts, Guardian Angel Home, Lutheran Home for Children, Morning Star Mission, Peter Claver Center, Public Health Council, Salvation Army, Silver Cross Hospital, Social Service Exchange, USO, Will County 4-H Girls and the YMCA.

The County-towns had their kick-off dinner Tuesday night in the Woodruff hotel in Joliet.

Frankfort Board Acts to Halt Long Sessions

The Frankfort village board has adopted the agenda system to guide its future meetings as a means of saving time for board members as well as individuals and groups having business with the council.

Council meetings have been running to midnight and 1 o'clock in the morning and Mayor George Sangmeister has hopes that thru following an agenda the sessions will be shorter yet the interests of the public will still be served.

The board discussed his suggestion and then unanimously adopted it. Persons who have some problem to discuss before the village board will now make an appointment with Village Clerk Walter Pfaff. He will give them a time to appear before the board and also a time limit for the subject.

The Frankfort board meets the first and third Mondays each month. Deadline for making an appointment to discuss a subject with the council is fixed for the Thursday preceding the next meeting. Today is the day to make appointments for next Monday's meeting.

Mayor Sangmeister pointed out that all of the board's sessions are open to the public and anyone is welcome to attend but spur-of-the-moment discussions are out.

Time also will be saved by referring some business to committees for a report and recommendation by committee chairmen.

Reach Final Tests in National Competition

Principals of the three high schools in the area, Lincoln-Way, of New Lenox, Carl Sandburg of Orland Park, and Bremen, of Midlothian yesterday announced the names of the semi-finalists from the area in the 1953-54 National Merit Scholarship competition.

Three boys and girl achieved the distinction of being semi-finalists in this area. Two of the boys are from Bremen high.

The girl is from Lincoln-Way, Donna Anderson, 17, of 214 Haven ave., New Lenox.

The entry from Carl Sandburg is Robert DeVoursney, 17, of Palos Park.

The two from Bremen are: Gerald Anderson, of 3548 W. 163rd st., Markham, and Craig Foster, 14408 Knox ave., Midlothian.

These students are now eligible to compete for the next step, finalists from which the winners are finally selected.

The area students are among 10,000 of the highest scorers on the national merit scholarship qualifying test, a nation wide test of educational development given in more than 14,000 high schools last April 29, in which 479,000 boys and girls participated.

The semi finalists are made up of the highest scorers in each state, prorated according to state population.

The semi finalists now face another rigorous three hour examination, the scholastic aptitude test of the college entrance board, which will further substantiate their high scores on the NMSQT. Those who repeat their high scores on this second test, which is to be conducted Dec. 6, will become finalists in the competition.

John M. Stalnaker, president of National Merit Scholarship Corp., which conducts the annual program, predicts that over 95 per cent of the semi finalists will get past the second hurdle.

In the final phase of the competition, high school grades, extra curricular activities, school citizenship and leadership of the students will be evaluated.

About May 1, at least 735 fortunate young people will be named the Merit Scholars of 1959.

All finalists will receive certificates of merit attesting to their high ability; and all colleges and universities will be notified, thus enabling these students to be considered for a wide range of other scholarship awards.

Each Merit Scholarship is a four year award covering the four undergraduate college years, and each award carries a stipend tailored to the need of the individual winner. The stipends have been averaging about $650 a year.

Beautiful Gentian Family Now in Toils of Ol' Debbil Suburbia

BY ROBERTS MANN
Conservation Editor
(Cook Co. Forest Presv.)

There is a famous group of plants, the gentians, which includes some of the most beautiful and, nowadays, the rarest of all wildflowers. They are widely distributed, from the tropics to the tundras near the Arctic circle, but are most abundant in the northern hemisphere. Several kinds, with exquisite blossoms of heavenly blue, occur only in alpine meadows of the Rockies, the Alps, and other high mountain ranges. Many species exist only in lowlands or in very moist ground, but a few are native in dry places. Some like a limestone soil; others cannot endure it. Some are tall and many are dwarfs.

Gentians are chiefly perennials—plants that continue to live from year to year—but, with few exceptions, they are extremely difficult to transplant and grow in gardens. Altho one alpine species, celebrated for its beautiful blue flowers, has been grown in England for more than a century, it does not do well in America. Our summers seem to be too hot and dry. Only three or four kinds of gentians are successfully cultivated in this country by anyone other than an expert horticulturist.

Sixty years ago, in the horse-and-buggy days, there were at least seven kinds of the true gentians growing in the Chicago region, and four or five closely related species. Some of them were abundant in the moors and sandy flats north of Waukegan, and in similar locations from South Chicago to Michigan City, Indiana. Cities such as Gary, Whiting and East Chicago did not exist then. Some kinds were abundant or common in the prairies, around the sloughs, in the North Shore ravines, and along some of the streams in Cook county.

By 1927 most gentians had become much less common, and some were very rare. In part this was due to the rapid expansion of industrial and residential developments which destroyed their favorite habitats. Some kinds, prized for their beauty, also disappeared because they were picked and dug up for sale by commercial flower gatherers, or by amateur botanists and the general public. Today, in the Chicago region, there are seven kinds of gentians still growing in out-of-the-way locations known only to professional people.

One of these is the closed gentian—also known as the blind, or bottle, or barrel gentian—which is remarkable because, at the top of a stout stem from one to two feet tall, it bears a cluster of deep blue club-shaped flowers that never open completely. Like most gentians, it does not bloom until August, lasts until mid-autumn, and on cold cloudy days its blossoms are tightly closed.

Another species, a close relative of the true gentians, is comes six or seven feet tall the American columbo. It bears a cluster of yellowish flowers spotted with brown dots. Only one small colony remains in this region.

Still another is the five-flowered gentian or ague weed, a slender much-branched plant that grows in rich woods and on moist hillsides. Its flowers, rather small, vary in color from pale blue to yellowish.

Most gorgeous of all is the eastern fringed gentian but, as elsewhere in northeastern America, it is almost extinct in the Chicago area. Its stems, from one to three feet tall, have many upright branches and bear several flowers, about two inches long, exquisitely blue and fringed along their margins. In his ode to this gentian, William Cullen Bryant wrote:

Then do they sweet and quiet eye
Look through its fringes to the sky—
Blue—blue—as if
That sky let fall
A flower from its cerulean wall.

The services for Mr. Jensen were held from the Sonntag funeral home, Joliet, with the Rev. Alfred Hunter officiating. Interment was in Maplewood cemetery, New Lenox.

My Neighbors

"Been driving a school bus very long, Mister?"

OPEN HOUSE - at the Morrison Furniture Company in Harvey will be held Oct. 1, 2 and 3. The Morrison brothers, Will and Don, invite their many friends and new neighbors to come in and view the new display area and register for prizes. A new two-story fireproof warehouse has just been completed, making 30,000 square feet of floor space available. ## Warns Amateurs Off Corn Pickers

If you haven't had much experience in operating farm machinery, don't start with a corn picker! It is one of the most dangerous of all farm machines to operate, says O. L. Hogsett, extension safety specialist at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

Most corn picker accidents happen when the operator leaves the tractor seat when the picker is running. The golden rule for picker safety is: NEVER TRY TO CLEAN, GREASE OR ADJUST YOUR CORN PICKER WHEN IT IS RUNNING.

Have the picker in good condition, and adjust it properly before starting to pick corn. A well-adjusted picker in good condition, operated at slow speed, is less likely to clog. Less clogging means less need to get off the seat to clean the rolls.

Study the instruction manual for your picker until you are completely familiar with all the adjustments needed for good operation. Keep all safety shields and guards in the right place at all times. Do not wear loose or torn clothing when you pick corn. Extra-thick gloves are especially dangerous when you are working around machinery.

Cover Crops Good Insurance For Gardens

Planting cover crops in vegetable gardens this fall will help to insure a good garden next summer.

That's the report from N. F. Oebker, University of Illinois extension specialist in vegetable crops. He explains that a cover crop adds organic matter to the soil and helps to improve its physical condition. The result is better vegetables.

Either rye or rye grass makes a good cover crop for Illinois vegetable gardens. It's too late this year to plant rye grass, but rye can be planted any time in September.

Use three pounds of rye for every 1,000 square feet of garden. If peppers, sweet corn or other row crops are still growing in the garden, sprinkle the seed between the rows. Then rake it into the soil.

Water the rye frequently if this fall is particularly dry. Plow or disc it under next spring when it's about six inches tall.

Timber Can Be Profitable Crop, Says Forester

Illinois farmers can start immediately to improve the management of their timber stands to increase the supply of high-quality, marketable wood.

More than 90 percent of the wood used by Illinois industry for its own use and in consumer goods comes from other states. About 25 percent of that wood is hardwood, and most of the hardwoods can be grown in this state, say L. B. Culver, extension forester at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

Break Ground For New School At C. C. Hills

The new Country Club Hills school, for which ground was broken last Friday afternoon with appropriate ceremonies, is distinguished by the fact that it is the first started under the Illinois school building commission program.

The state supplies the funds necessary to build schools in for the Illinois timber grower, Culver points out. But at present it is bad for consumers because of the added cost of bringing in materials from outside.

Illinois has nearly four million acres of woodland now, Culver says. About 90 percent of it is privately owned, mostly on farms.

Recent surveys show that the state is growing wood faster than it is using it. But farmers are cutting the high-quality material—the kind that is most profitable and in greatest demand—about a third faster than they are growing it.

With better woodland management, however, farmers could increase the timber growth rate on their present acreage about 2 to 2 1/2 times. That would mean that Illinois' present forest resource, with good management, would be capable of producing the state's total hardwood needs.

It's The Dull Knife That Cuts Your Fingers

Sharp knives not only make food preparation easier, but you're less likely to cut yourself with them, says O. L. Hogsett, extension safety specialist at the University of Illinois.

A dull knife takes more pressure, making it more likely to slip. If it does, it's still sharp enough to give you a nasty cut that will heal slowly.

To help keep knives sharp, wash them separately; then store them in a rack that will protect the cutting edge. Don't use your best knives to cut paper, string or other materials that will dull the edge.

A good sharpening stone is your best tool to sharpen dull knives. It costs less than many "gadget" sharpeners and will not wear the knife down so quickly. If you're not sure how to use a stone, it might be better to take your dull knives to an experienced professional sharpener.

districts that are without resources of their own and then leases the plants to the school districts. They pay a rental for 16 and two thirds years and then own the school. No interest is charged. Taxpayers in the Country Club Hills district will thus save some $40,000 in interest.

The ceremonies Friday were begun with the presentation of colors by Boy and Girl Scouts and a prayer by the Rev. Wendell Pew, pastor of the Country Club Hills Christian church.

William Hastings, president of the school board, read a letter from Gov. Stratton, and brief talks were made by building commission; Clarence chairman of the state school George P. Lloyd, of Joliet, the Beam, former school board president; School Supt. Zenon Sykuta and J. E. Merriam, developer of Country Club Hills.

All civic organizations of the Hills and the city council there were represented.

Also taking part in the ground breaking was one of the pupils of the school, Carl Nordgren.

Six weeks to two months is plenty of time for a dairy cow to remain dry.

ance can help to control the disease.

Rhinitis is apparently spread by older pigs that have recovered from the disease. Some of the infected pigs have dished-in or curved snouts.

To cut down danger from this disease, the veterinarians recommend the following practices:

1. Isolate sows at farrowing time.
2. Keep any known infected pigs away from baby pigs.
3. Destroy runts. Slaughter the whole herd if most of the animals are infected. Then disinfect the buildings and equipment before starting a new herd on clean ground.
4. Add new stock that is known to be disease-free and that comes from farms that haven't had a rhinitis problem.
5. Follow the McLean county system of swine sanitation.
6. Living with the disease is often unprofitable. However, some herd owners cut closely rather than sell out.
7. Do not buy breeding animals from herds that are known to be infected.

Braves Score 29-12 Win Over Spartans

Eagles, Knights to Strive for First League Victory of Season

Bremen's Power Just Too Much; In Tie With Rich for Loop Lead

Bremen high school varsity footballers ran up their second Southwest Suburban conference triumph last Friday afternoon when they overpowered the Spartans at Oak Lawn 25 to 12.

The Braves had someone working all the time. Dave Palmer, a 172-pound back, Richie Nelson, the other half, and Dennis Tatum divided the chores and with the line performing well were able to get the mail thru on time.

Palmer and Nelson each toted the ball 11 times, and each ran up total gains of 89 yards, and each scored a touchdown. Tatum, who does an excellent job as fullback, scored twice, and was a power on defense.

The first half ended with the count knotted at 12-12. The Spartans were able to do much against the Bremen line but they found the secondary a nice touch for aerial thrusts and made the most of it.

Bremen rooters were gnawing their fingers at half-time but the intermission gave Coach Callan opportunity to straighten out his charges on the matter of pass defense and Oak Lawn had to be content with the 12 points tallied to that point.

It was in the second half that Palmer began a series of gallops, one of them for 17 yards and a touchdown.

The Spartans couldn't gain and the Braves could, and that, in brief, is the summary of the second half.

In the opening period the Spartans drove to the Bremen 4-yard line where they were held for downs. Then came an exchange of punts and the Braves scored after a march that began on their own 44, with Tatum lugging the ball for the final 22 yards. Nelson tried to plunge for the extra point but was short.

Oak Lawn's Art Borkowski evened the count in the second quarter when he completed five out of six pass attempts, and then finally sneaked it over himself from around the goal line. Davis tried a kick for the extra point but it was wide.

Nelson found a path around right end and went 41 yards for Bremen's second touchdown. Tatum's plunge for the extra point failed, and it was Bremen 12, Oak Lawn 6. Then with just seconds remaining in the half Borkowski flipped a touchdown pass to Davis. Millstead was short in a crack thru the line for the extra point.

Jim Mannaioni set up the Brave's third counter when he intercepted a pass on the Spartan 27. A series of line plays brought the ball to the 5 and Tatum went over from there. This time Nelson went over for the extra point and the score stood at 19 to 12 for Bremen.

In the closing quarter Nelson went over from the 17 after the Braves had come 55 yards the hard way. The try for the extra point failed and the final score was Bremen 25, Oak Lawn 12.

All baseball players in Orland Park are requested to turn in uniforms by Oct. 4.

Plans for the 1959 baseball season have been formulated by the Orland Youth association.

Due to the ever-increasing number of boys wishing to participate, there will not be a traveling Little League team in 1959. Instead there will be six uniformed Orland Township League teams.

Willis Young and William Christensen will be the field directors of the Orland League.

The Babe Ruth team will continue to compete with teams in neighboring communities. Victor Fisher will be the manager.

The police team will also travel as before. The manager will be Bill Zinn.

The Orland league now has three sponsors. Any organization or individual wishing to sponsor a team should make application in writing to the Orland Youth association, 13521 Elm st., Orland Park.

There will also be four farm teams of 7 and 8 year olds. Sponsors for these teams are needed. The field directors are Jack Thompson and Ed Kozlik.

The association is grateful to all who helped make the recent dance a success. Thanks are also expressed to the people of Orland Park Hills subdivision who are responsible for the use of the existing ball diamonds for the 1959 season.

Rich Rockets Explode

Lincoln-Way's varsity football team took a 41 to 0 drubbing last Saturday at the hands of Rich. The game was played at Park Forest and it was the third win for the Rockets.

The Rich frosh sophs won the curtain-raiser 33 to 6.

In the varsity contest the Rockets employed straight football most of the game. They resorted to few passes, and apparently decided to save their fancy formations for another foe.

The Rich line was superior and had little difficulty in opening up holes when needed or putting up a brickwall defense when the Knights were carrying the ball. In the face of such odds the work of Howard Mann, 138-pound back for Lincoln-Way is deserving of special mention. In 15 tries Mann carried the ball 54 yards.

This was far short of the ground gained by Lynn Mautz, of Rich, who accounted for 102 yards in nine attempts but then Mautz was playing back of a better line. The yards amassed by Mautz accounted for three of his team's touchdowns.

The Rockets wasted no time in serving notice that they were after another win. On the opening kick-off the Knights attempted two inside boots and when they failed, lofted a long one that Mautz took on his 37, and footed it to the Knights' 20-yard line before he was downed. Four plays later Brian Mays sneaked it over from the one-yard line. A few minutes later Rich had scored again, this time with the aid of a pass, Hughes to Johnston. That brought the ball to the L-W 25 and from there Rich carried the ball in short bursts to the one, from where Mautz went over. Mays missed his only extra point try at that time. Mautz scored again just before the first quarter ended to make it 20 to 0.

In the second period Rich added another touchdown, by Bailey; one in the third, by Mautz after a 38-yard scamper, and one in the fourth by Chilton.

Lincoln-Way tried 10 passes and completed three. One of their attempts was intercepted. Rich attempted two passes and completed one.

Lincoln-Way will meet Carl Sandburg this Saturday at 2 o'clock on the Sandburg field. The frosh-soph game is scheduled for 12 o'clock.

Seek Sponsors for Expanding Baseball Leagues at Orland Park

All baseball players in Orland Park are requested to turn in uniforms by Oct. 4.

Plans for the 1959 baseball season have been formulated by the Orland Youth association.

Due to the ever-increasing number of boys wishing to participate, there will not be a traveling Little League team in 1959. Instead there will be six uniformed Orland Township League teams.

Willis Young and William Christensen will be the field directors of the Orland League.

The Babe Ruth team will continue to compete with teams in neighboring communities. Victor Fisher will be the manager.

The police team will also travel as before. The manager will be Bill Zinn.

The Orland league now has three sponsors. Any organization or individual wishing to sponsor a team should make application in writing to the Orland Youth association, 13521 Elm st., Orland Park.

There will also be four farm teams of 7 and 8 year olds. Sponsors for these teams are needed. The field directors are Jack Thompson and Ed Kozlik.

The association is grateful to all who helped make the recent dance a success. Thanks are also expressed to the people of Orland Park Hills subdivision who are responsible for the use of the existing ball diamonds for the 1959 season.

Crackel Sends State Aid Checks to Schools

Checks are being sent out from the office of Will County School Superintendent Verne E. Crackel covering the July and August payments of state aid from the Illinois common school fund for the 1957-58 school year.

School districts file their claims the first week in November, based on the average daily attendance during September and October. In January the state department of public instruction passes on what are termed tentative claims. Then at this time of the year it approves an amended or final claim which is based on attendance figures for the entire school year.

Sometimes the amended figure is higher than that set up in the tentative claim, sometimes it is lower. For example under the tentative claim the figure for the New Lenox grade schools was around $67,000; the final figure is about $70,000.

State aid is distributed on a formula in which the average daily attendance and the amount of assessed valuation of a district are principal factors. If the valuation runs less than $200 per pupil the difference is made up and of course if there is an extremely low valuation a district gets more state aid.

Because high school districts are larger than grade school districts their valuations are generally up to a point that their state aid is comparatively small. Usually the moist a high school gets from state aid is $7 for every days attendance. High schools pick up some other aid however because of vocational courses. Schools also get money from the state to apply on transportation costs.

Many of the schools in the state lost money last year because of the flu outbreak which reduced attendance sharply. New Lenox got more money because of a substantial increase in enrollment thru absorption of another district.

The state pays state aid in 12 installments, the first six being based on the tentative claim approved. The last six payments are based on the amended or final claims.

According to the amended claim the total to be paid out in Illinois in state school aid for the past school year is $94,117,961.09, of which $1,376,895.91 goes to Will county schools. The last checks on this figure will be made out in Crackel's office in December.

The first check to be paid on the tentative claim for the 1958-59 school year are due in January but will not be paid until February. Payment always lags a month behind in state aid school claims.

Supt. Crackel's office also is preparing checks on claims for transportation and vocational training. (These figures are for the entire 1957-58 school year with six payments yet to come.)

Lincoln-Way high school will receive a total of $3,976.98 from the state aid fund for 1957-58 but will receive $6,825.39 for vocational training and about $11,500 to help pay the cost of transporting pupils.

The Peotone unit district, in which the Green Garden schools are included, gets a total of $14,714.43 in state aid for last year. It's vocational training program brings in another $4,903.56.

State aid totals for grade school districts in the area are as follows:

Old Tools Tell Of Early Days

JOHN W. ALLEN

So. Ill. University

Artifacts are the product of man's workmanship. Much of what we know concerning the manner in which earlier men lived has been learned from study of such of their artifacts as have survived. It is from these objects found on the sites where they lived that archeologists have been able to tell us much concerning the life of those who left no written records.

Southern Illinois is rich in its archeological offerings, perhaps among the richest in the Country. Where archeology is mentioned most persons think of earlier or prehistoric peoples. There is no quarrel here, for in this field "Egypt" is particularly rich. It is also rich in a later mass of materials into which almost anyone may delve. There are the old tools, implements, devices, and products that our grandfathers used. Many interesting glimpses of the ways in which our more immediate ancestors lived is a suggested by the kind of study which some designate as "smokehouse-attic-and old barn" archeology.

It really is not necessary to turn back to pre-history to study archeology. An illustration of this came recently when an old sickle or reaphook once used to harvest grain was found. Study of this reaphook suggested some of the methods our grandfathers employed to harvest grain when they first came to settle in Illinois.

This reaphook is a somewhat crude one. It has a wooden handle, a slender and tapering blade about an inch wide and 24 inches long that ends in a sharp point. Hammer markings on the blade clearly tell us that it was made by hand. This particular implement was brought from Ireland to Randolph County more than 140 years ago. It must have been, even then, an old and cherished heirloom to be included in the family effects brought on the long journey to Illinois. It could just as well have come from ancient Egypt for these tools have changed little through the centuries. The ancient reaphook now survives in the hand sickle used to trim the grass about flower beds, shrubs and at the edges of lawns.

When man first found the seeds of certain grasses such as wheat, oats, barley, rye, and rice were good foods, he doubtlessly gathered them, rubbed them out with his bare hands, rudely prepared and ate them. This he would naturally do. It would just as naturally follow that he would contrive some helping device like a reaphook to help in gathering the grain.

The very earliest of these devices found by archeologists and others on the sites where their users laid them aside or lost them centuries ago are long sharp-edged hand stones. There were, perhaps, more primitive ones of wood that decayed and left no traces.

That some kind of a wooden device first may have been used is indicated by practices observed among the American Indians. When the white man first came to the Great Lakes region they found Indian women using short paddles or blades to beat and rake the grain from wild rice growing along the margin of lakes and streams. They bent over the sides of their canoes while beating or stripping the grain that fell into its

When man learned to work in metal he began to use it for making tools and implements, among which were reaphooks. These remained the principal tool used to harvest small grains until the advent of the once familiar grain cradle in the 18th century.

The form of reaphook used by the Egyptians and the manner in which it was used changed very little for thousands of years. The sharp end of its narrow blade was passed among the stalks of the standing grain to gather as much as the hand could conveniently grasp. These bunches were then clipped by the hook and laid in an ordered pile that was bound into a bundle by a wisp of straw used as a string. Next the bundles were collected and arranged in shocks to dry thoroughly. Generally, however, they must have been carried to some place of protection for grain was too valuable and scarce to be left in unguarded fields.

Looking at this old reaphook and thinking of the things it suggested brought to mind an old custom that was a part of the early harvest. It had become a custom, perhaps a law, even as early as Biblical times, to allow the poor to come and glean the grain fields when the harvesters had finished. These gleaners were permitted to collect the fallen heads and any stalks of grain they found remaining. This ancient practice had not entirely disappeared within the writer's memory.

Less than seventy years ago, a widowed woman in Saline County was allowed to glean from neighboring wheat fields, as it is called "for chicken feed". The grain, about three bushels, that she and her children gathered was not fed to the chickens. She took it to the mill and received 100 pounds of flour for it. For her action it is recalled that the neighbors spoke commendably.

County Supt. of Schools Verne E. Crackel, all of whom are seeking re-election. Also Sheriff Roy C. Doerfler, a candidate for treasurer and Gilbert A. Knater, former state police lieutenant who is aspiring to the office of sheriff.

The candidates were feted at a luncheon at the Hotel Louis Joliet. Some 350 persons from all sections of the county attended and heard Morton H. Hollingsworth of Joliet, the state director of finance and a National GOP Committeeman, stress the need for "getting out the vote" on Nov. 4. Apathy in this off-year election could be tragic both he and Cong. Mason said.

C. H. Peterson, chairman of the Will County Republican Central committee presided at the meeting. He announced that Republican headquarters at 63 E. Jefferson st., have been opened. He invited interested voters to visit the first-floor downtown center for information on the election and for campaign literature.

Mr. Peterson, who is directing the November Republican campaign in the county reminded persons planning to vote in November that Oct. 6, is the deadline for voter registrations. They can be made at the county clerk's office at the courthouse or with the deputy registrars in the various townships. Changes of address must be reported by Oct. 6 also.

Make Tour of GOP Candidates Will County

Looking toward the Nov. 4 general election, state, district and county candidates on the Republican ticket toured the county last week as "Caravan Day" was observed.

Thruout the day, every section of the community was visited, with the candidates conferring with precinct committeemen, housewives and business men.

Heading the caravan were the two state aspirants to office: Gerald W. Smith, of Elmwood Park, seeking the post of state superintendent of public instruction; and Warren Wright of Park Ridge, candidate for state treasurer, a post he has held on two previous occasions.

They emphasized their qualifications for these important offices and outlined the duties of each office.

District candidates who traveled with them included State Senator Lottie Holman O'Neill, of Downers Grove and veteran Congressman Noah M. Mason, of Oglesby. Both are seeking re-election.

The local candidates who joined the caravan included: County Judge, John C. Cowing, Probate Judge, Stewart C. Hutchinson, County Clerk, Joseph H. Hartley, Probate Clerk, E. B. Workman and

Keeping The Vigil

Our American form of republic was devised to provide an ingenious system of "checks and balances" in government. The object, of course, was to make sure that too great a concentration of power would not be captured by the legislative bodies, the judiciary, or the executive with its broad police powers.

The system has worked well. But it would not have been successful without the "checks and balances" supplied by a force apart from government—the free and independent newspapers of America.

Because of our alert, free, and enterprising press, our courts, Congress, legislatures and executive bodies are exposed to public view, like goldfish in a glass bowl. The price of freedom is eternal vigilance. America's newspapers keep that vigil, twenty four hours of every day. So that we do not forget the role of a free press in preserving freedom, National Newspaper Week is being observed October 1 to 8.

Time To Change Driving Habits

Some 300 Illinois communities turned their clocks back to standard time last Sunday and 500 more, including those in the Chicago area, will make the change on the last Sunday in October.

Turning the clocks back an hour means less daylight in the evening and less daylight means that motorists homeward bound at the close of work should change their driving habits.

October is a particularly critical month for after dark accidents and one reason for this is that too many drivers still retain the daytime driving routine adopted in the summer.

Persons driving after dark, it is claimed, are more subject to fatigue and sleepiness than they are during the day. And their senses and reflexes are dulled.

Maintaining daytime speeds at night when one can see only a small fraction of the distance that one can see in daylight is courting death.

According to statistics gathered in Illinois for the past three years covering traffic fatalities, for every one that occurred in the daylight hours, three occurred at night, despite the fact daylight traffic is twice as heavy.

Pedestrians would do well to keep alert too. A person crossing or walking along a street at night is difficult to see, especially in the fall or winter when the walker is apt to be wearing a coat or jacket of dark colored material.

If motorists and pedestrians make an extra effort to remain alert after dark it may enable them to remain alive. Certainly it will help.

On Second Thot

by GLENN F. LOGAN

Don't look now! But if you are a fisherman and live in the South Cook county area, that creature doing rolls and pr act icking power dives above you is no doubt the savage, voracious aedes trivittatus.

The aedes trivittatus—we spell it, you pronounce it—usually referred to as the trivittatus by men of science and learning but probably more frequently called one of those &-%?-$ man-eating mosquitoes, is described by the South Cook County Mosquito Abatement district bosses as "the most aggressive annoyner of the more than 30 species found in the Cook county area." The 30 annoyner alluded to here, it should be made clear, are all mosquitoes.

While the trivittatus is said to have a special yen for fishermen, the records show that it never passes up any chances.

No statistics are available as to how many coups the trivittatus has counted on bird watchers, wild flower filchers, hikers, neckers and householders but it is known the danged pest stands, or flits, about with a little song on its lips.... "until a fisherman comes along, I'll get along, getting a bite out of you."

Oscar V. Lopp, entomologist for the South Cook County etc. etc., says the trivittatus population has taken quite a jump in the past three years. In 1956 the annual total catch of this species in the 16 traps maintained by the district amounted to 125.

Apparently the trivittatus found the district a fertile field for fishermen and less desirable human tidbits because in 1957 the trap yield had grown to 1,500. So far this year the catch has been 4,000 and is expected to be higher before the weatherman quits fooling around and puts summer back on the shelf until next year.

Mr. Lopp says such a pattern is observed in all forms of life. "Without apparent reason population increases will occur every once in a while," he said, "reach a peak and then start a decline."

He has a fond hope that this is the peak year for the &-%?-$ trivittatus but is not going to make any predictions.

"Each form of life has what we must call a niche," says Mr. Lopp. "When all's well in this particular niche, its inhabitants will flourish. Apparently the trivittatus is in the midst of a prosperous boom year. We hope the recession sets in by 1959."

When I was a boy, down in Missouri, we had some years when the mosquitoes used to give trouble. Whether they were aedes trivittatus or aedes vexans or some other species I don't know. We just used to call them mosquitoes and graded them as small, medium and large, the term "king size" not having been invented then.

We used an ordinary flyswatter in dealing with the small ones, a stick for those of medium size but to repel the big ones everyone kept a baseball bat handy.

The big ones were really a problem. Screens were no protection because the big fellows would break right thru and if you pulled the bed clothes over your head they would lift them off and let drive.

My Grandfather Henderson, who like my Grandfather Logan, came from Kentucky, was quite a sportsman and disdained to use a ball bat when he tangled with the large ones. His favorite weapon was a three foot broomstick. He believed this was more sporting and was even willing to give the mosquito the first bite.

He was inclined to make light of the Missouri mosquitoes. They were a pretty puny lot, according to him, compared to some of those that frequented Kentucky when he was a boy.

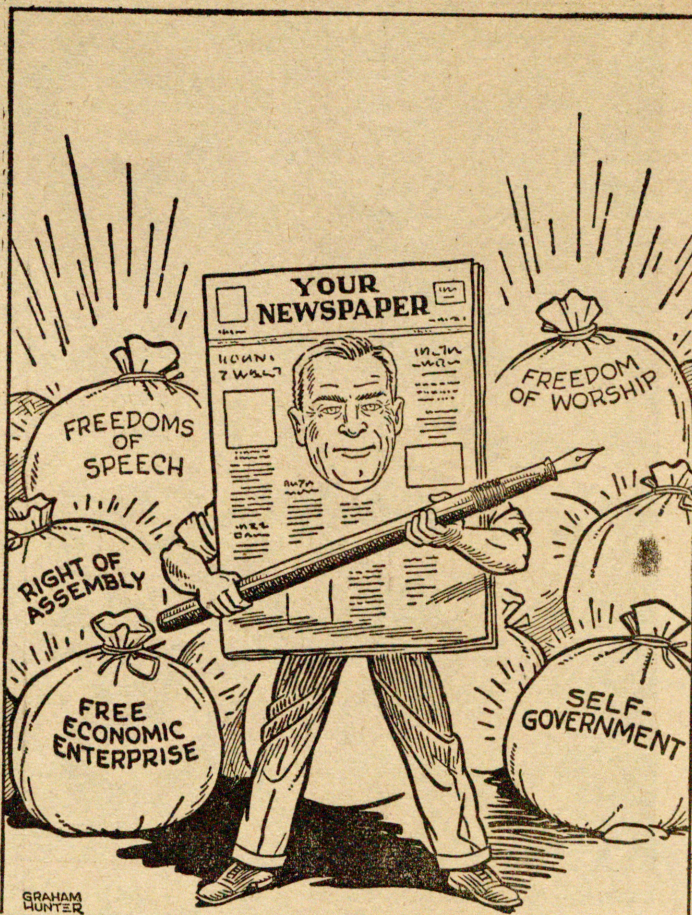

Some of the Kentucky lot, he said, had a wingspread of ten feet and would measure four to four and a half feet from head to tail. A heavy charge of extra large buckshot would bring them down, he said, but it was no game for a poor marksman. It could be just too bad if he missed.

My grandfather said tho, that while these mosquitoes were savage critters they could be gentled if one had the time and patience. He himself had tamed quite a few of them and had succeeded in transforming those he had captured while they were young, into vegetable and fruit eaters.

Some of the neighbors used to warn him that someday some of these mosquitoes would turn on him but my grandfather said they never did. Some of those that he tamed stayed on the place, while some of the others would fly away and join the wild ones. But even some of these remembered him.

As a matter of fact, he said, it was some of those that joined the wild bunch that saved the life of a neighbor, who was stricken with double pneumonia. My grandfather's father was away at the time and when word came that this neighbor would die if he did not have a doctor, there was no one from his house to send.

My Grandfather was young, but he was old enough to hook up a horse to a light buggy and light a shuck for town. He picked up the doctor and was heading back when the horse fell and bungled himself up so much that he could only hobble.

Speed was of the essence and as my grandfather and the doctor stood there debating what to do they heard a big bellowing hum and zooming toward them out of the timber half a mile away, in echelon formation came four big mosquitoes.

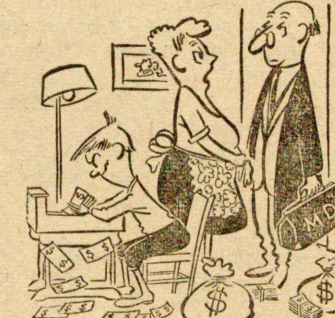

The doctor tugged a pistol out of his waist band but my grandfather called for him not to shoot. The mosquitoes looked familiar. He thought the big bull that was clearly the squad leader had a blue colored lump over his left eye and sure enough as they came closer he could see it clearly and knew it was a mosquito that he had raised from a calf. He had flown against an anvil one day when practicing low flying and laid his head open above the eye. My grandfather had taken care of the injury, using blue salve, and the ingredients that gave the salve its color were so powerful that sometimes they left a stain. That was why this mosquito had a blue lump over his eye, grandfather explained.

Well, these mosquitoes remembered my grandfather, all right, and buzzed around and sort of nuzzled him, like a friendly horse will sometimes ghbor's farm from where the mosquitoes took over. They made the trip in half an hour and they weren't even breathing hard. Thanks to this speed the doctor arrived in time and saved the man.

My grandfather sometimes was inclined to exaggerate a mite and I always suspected that he might have stretched the truth a little bit with this tale about the mosquitoes. I just don't believe he could have seen that the lump over the big mosquito's eye was blue, while he was half a mile away.

Business and Finance

By MAURICE P. ANGLAND

Last week Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson, spoke to the national convention of the American Bankers' Association in Chicago, on the problems of the government in handling its refinancing of the public debt as present issues mature, and also the $12 billion of new bonds which must be offered to handle the deficit of this fiscal year.

The secretary spoke to the bankers on the eve of the Treasury's announcement of a new bond offering in the amount of between $3 and $4 billion. He pointed out that in the last ten years a considerable part of the financing problem was taken care of thru purchase of about $20 billion of government bonds by trust funds under government supervision such as Social Security etc., but that now these funds could not absorb additional bonds as the flow of their funds is outward in payment of obligations and claims.

The Secretary expressed concern over the fact that more Series F and G bonds are being cashed than are being purchased and that non-bank financial institutions have not been buying government bonds in amounts which meet the needs of the government and in proportion to the funds they have available.

He criticized savings banks, insurance companies, savings and loan associations and pension funds, etc. for actually reducing their holdings of government bonds rather than increasing same. He said that some of the institutions explain they cannot buy Treasury bonds to fight inflation when their competitors are obtaining better yields elsewhere.

It is obvious in this Mr. Anderson was referring to the fact that pension funds, profit sharing plans, etc. have been making an effort to protect the purchasing power of the dollar thru common stock purchases instead of fixed dollar obligations. Even the labor unions demanding wage increases are also taking a greater interest in the pension funds to insure that these funds will compensate for the decline in purchasing power of the dollar and are therefore common stock buyers.

Mr. Anderson stated that the financial conduct of financial institutions should not be confined to the immediate results of their policies, but should be guided by the ultimate consequences of such conduct. He advised that a healthy government bond market is the responsibility of the financial community as well as the government.

The Secretary also pointed out that permanent relief from speculative excesses can only be achieved when basic conditions giving rise to fears of inflation are recognized and dealt with. The Secretary did not define "inflation" which means many things to many people. (Except during period of "depression" there is a constant "erosion" of the monetary unit altho normally only at a rate of something below 2% per year.)

That the dollar has dropped 48 cents of its 1939 value was admitted by Mr. Anderson, but he stated that all but four cents of this decline had come about before 1953 and is a charge to World War II. (It should again be explained that prior to World War II, we were just emerging from the "depression" and the period when the dollar actually increased in value.)

Mr. Anderson stated that the treasury now is studying a number of possibilities for improving the government bond

Here we are with our first social column of the term. The Juniors — with their class rings ordered and officers elected, who are, by the way, Larry Seavertson, president; Larry Surges, vice-president; Caryle Struthers, secretary; and Bryan Smith, treasurer — are making preparations for the prom. I've heard a few suggestions for the theme already, and they sound real neat!

Oh, speaking of class officers, here are the rest. In the Senior class: John Flynn is president, Vivienne Eisenbrandt, vice-president; Geriann Hull, secretary; and Tom Ricketts is treasurer. In the Sophomore class Kay Swinford is once again president; Carol Spector, secretary; Duane Warning is vice-president; and Pat Loucks is treasurer. Of course, the Freshman have to get acquainted.

holdings of the non-bank financial institutions. This could be thru government tax methods or other controls which would force channeling of funds into government bonds.

The Secretary explained if these non-bank financial institutions do not buy government bonds the government must turn to commercial banks which means a larger money supply and more inflationary pressure. This is explained by the fact that when a bank buys a $1,000 bond, it immediately creates a deposit of a like amount to the credit of the government.

The government must raise the interest rates on its bonds to compete with other high grade securities which pushes the budget even higher as the interest payments on the debt of more than $280 billion is a considerable item. The Federal Reserve's efforts to control thru "tight" money effects interest rates on all borrowing.

Christening Party Given by Westlund Family

By MRS. ROBERT ANDERSON
Fieldbrook 9-2857

Dean Richard, one month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Westlund, was christened at the Drexel Presbyterian church, Chicago, Sunday, Sept. 21. The occasion was also his maternal grandmother's birthday. The godparents were Clarence Sandberg, Mrs. Westlund's brother, and Mrs. Florence Anderson, a sister of Mr. Westlund. Dinner guests in the Westlund home were 23 family members.

Mrs. Wilbur Eckol and Mrs. Milton Westlund attended the Junior Woman's club tea in Orland Park Sunday afternoon.

Recent parties around the Woods during the past two weeks were Mrs. George Brown's luncheon, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Anderson's dinner party Sept. 21, Mr. and Mrs. Al Karre's party Sept. 20.

On Sept. 21, neighbors planned a surprise dinner for the H. L. Woodbury's. Out of town guests who were in on the surprise were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carver of Pistakee Bay and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Greene of Orland Park. Also Mrs. Woodbury's sister and family, the Gene Howes of Palos Heights, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tentish and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hanson of Chicago. The party was a complete surprise.

Nancy Donohue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Donohue celebrated her 2nd birthday, Sept. 26. Party guests were Toney and Terry Aiello, Mrs. Arthur Aiello, Laura Niebrugge and Mrs. H. G. Niebrugge. Nancy's baby brother, Paul, also attended the party. Sunday, Sept. 28, Mrs. Donohue's dinner guests were Nancy's two grandmothers and grandfather who helped her celebrate at an all family birthday party.

Mrs. Henry Anderson's house guest this week is her aunt, Mrs. Roscoe Wilson, who is visiting with her before returning to her Florida home for the winter season.

The County 4-H committee spent a full day last week studying records of County 4-H club members. A number of the records were judged again at a district meeting involving eleven counties. As a result of the work of these committees, we have named 135 4-H members to receive county project honor recognition. 41 of these also received state project honor recognition. 30 4-Hers were named county outstanding members and 11 of these received state outstanding recognition.

This is quite a record, one of which I am quite proud. I am sure the 4-Hers involved, their parents and teachers will be equally proud when the names of these honor winners are announced at the county achievement program in Homewood Nov. 11th.

With the completion of the 4-H year, we should now look forward to the 4-H program for the coming year. Here are some timely hints for all county 4-H clubs: Involve your entire club in planning next year's program; have an installation ceremony for new officers and new members; start a new record book and keep it current; get the supplies for your club, including a new secretary's record book; invite that 10 or 11-year old down the road to join your 4-H Club.

Young cattle cleaning up cornfields need more protein than they can get from cornstalks. You can furnish extra protein by feeding four to six pounds of legume hay or one pound of a high-protein supplement, such as soybean meal, per head daily.

It's so easy to prevent accidents. The rules for safety are simple and practical. Look for things that cause accidents, and correct them. Watch what you are doing. Slow down—you'll get more things done by planning than by rushing frantically from this to that. Take a five-minute rest to relax when you get tired and nervous. Just common sense and watchfulness will do more than anything else to protect you.

A group of Illinois dairymen who stuffed their cows with good roughage last year were able to obtain high production with only a small amount of high-priced grain. These Holstein herd owners got an average of 11,093 pounds of milk per cow while feeding only one pound of grain for every five or more pounds of milk produced. Their return over feed cost was $45. more per cow than that of their neighbors who fed grain at the rate of one pound for every 2.9 pounds of milk produced.

CORRECTION

A picture of children of the St. George school receiving safety patrol belts in last week's issue of this paper, stated the belts were donated by the Tinley Park Police department. This was in error. The belts were given by the Chicago Motor club.
